Car chase ends with shooting in West Sacramento

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

An auto theft suspect is hospitalized with a gunshot wound after he allegedly tried to run over a California Highway Patrol officer following a pursuit that ended in West Sacramento early Sunday.

Officer Begay of the CHP said the incident began around 3 a.m. near the Freeport Bridge, south of Sacramento.

"A Sacramento Sheriff's unit and one of our units were trying to make a stop on a white Ford pickup for possible DUI," said Begay. "The sheriff's unit activated his lights, and the vehicle took off and failed to yield. The sheriff's unit attempted to put the pickup out of service by doing a maneuver to spin it out, but the sheriff's unit became disabled and the (suspect) vehicle continued."

By that time, the chase was near Golden Gate Drive in West Sacramento, he said.

Finally, near Catalina Rd. and Carmel Bay Rd. in a south-area subdivision, the CHP pursuer forced the suspect's vehicle to spin out. There were two officers in the black-and-white.

"The driver of the CHP unit stayed in the vehicle," said Begay. "The passenger in the CHP unit got out, thinking the (suspect) was going to do a 'foot bail' (escape on foot). Then the driver of the suspect vehicle put the vehicle into reverse and accelerated towards the CHP officer who got out. The officer shot at the vehicle, striking the driver apparently in the lower abdomen."

The driver was taken to the UCD Medical Center for treatment. The CHP thinks the pickup truck was stolen.

"I believe the suspect is still at the medical center," Officer Begay said yesterday. "We are watching him, and when he is released, he will be booked."

As per routine, the CHP officer involved in the shooting has been placed on leave pending a review of the action. An investigator from the Yolo district attorney's office also will review the shooting, said a West Sacramento Police Department spokesperson.

Plea deal for employee

A former school district employee who confessed to falsifying his time sheets to collect over $30,000 in unearned wages was sentences in Yolo Superior Court last month.

John Blackmere, a former part-time custodian at Washington Unified School District, pled "no contest" to grand theft. In return for the plea, he was ordered to serve 180 days in jail, five years of formal probation and to pay $5,000 in restitution. The jail time could be converted to home detention or a work program, said a court clerk.

The Yolo County Assistant District Attorney handling the case could not be reached.

The original charges against Blackmere in 2004 included burglary and forgery as well as theft, but the charges were dropped in the plea deal.

Man critically injured after fight with police

A man who resisted arrest yesterday was sent to the hospital with a severe injury after officers with batons struggled to subdue him. The man allegedly struck one officer who tried to restrain him, beginning a struggle that included at least two attempts to subdue the suspect with a "Tazer" electric stun gun.

A second man with the suspect was also injured during the confrontation with West Sacramento police. The second man broke a tooth and possibly his jaw, but was not the primary aggressor, said a police spokesperson.

The pair were contacted by an officer, who noticed that the suspect was sweating profusely and kept putting his hands in his pockets, according to police.

Further details were not available as the News-Ledger went to press yesterday.

Armed robbers strike

Three suspects robbed a Southport credit union on June 4, escaping with an undisclosed amount of money. The robbery occurred at about 11:30 a.m. on a Friday, at the SAFE Credit Union in the Southport Town Center near Jefferson Blvd. and Linden Rd.

"Two (adult males) with hooded sweatshirts, armed with handguns, robbed the credit union," said Sgt. Ray Bombardier of the West Sacramento Police Department.

"They dropped a getaway car over in the Touchstone Place area afterwards."

A third suspect was believed to have waited in the getaway car during the robbery.

Police generally do not disclose the amount of money taken in such a robbery. Bombardier said that in this case, "they could have gotten more doing something else."

The FBI may have some leads in the case, he added.

The Washington Unified School District honored its own on June 2, with an employee recognition ceremony held at the West Sacramento civic center.

City okays contract for cops

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento's city council last week approved a new contract with city police, who had been working without a contract since last year. The agreement means that contentious negotiations with both the police officers' union and firefighters' union have now come to a close.

"We're very pleased we're able to reach an agreement that will strengthen our ability to recruit and retain a top-quality police department while also being fiscally prudent," said Mayor Christopher Cabaldon.

The new deal will pay police union members a lump sum of three percent of their salary to cover the retroactive period between July 1 of 2004 and June 10 of 2005.

Then it will offer a five percent salary increase, followed by twice-annual raises of two percent or more, depending on job classification, through 2008.

High school: rising costs demand a second look

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

West Sacramento's school board members learned on Thursday that cost estimates for the city's new, comprehensive high school campus now exceed $150,000,000. The estimate, for a campus to be made up of "small learning communities," is close to double the amount that district officials expected when the city passed a $52 million school bond to fund the local share of the campus's costs.

"That amount was for the maximum amount of our bonding capacity at the time," said Dave Farmer, president of Washington Unified School District's school board. "At that time, we are looking at about $75-80 million in total costs."

A portion of the costs will be paid for with state money and other sources, but district officials worry that the gap between the $52 million school bond and the total construction cost has become too large.

Farmer was out of town during Thursday's staff presentation on the current cost estimates. But he said he believes some trimming may be in order.

"From what I understand, the new dollar amount would be for a campus with all the bells and whistles. We may need to go back and look at where we can make adjustments. Unfortunately, construction costs have gone up, and will continue to."

The campus – which could serve up to 3,000 students at a time at peak capacity – is scheduled to open in fall of 2008, said Farmer. Most of the proposed high school's acreage near the Nugget shopping center at Linden Road and Jefferson Boulevard has already been acquired by the district – which expects to spend about $23 million just on land acquisition for the school.

The city government is also looking at contributing about $15 million to help pay for some facilities that have joint uses for both the public and the high school, said Farmer.

"I can't speak for everybody on the school board, but I think the general consensus is we want to do this right," he commented. "We want to make sure this is the community's school, with amenities such as the competition pool and the gym available to the community."

Christopher Cabaldon, the city's mayor, placed some of the blame for the cost troubles on the prior school board and its focus on acquiring a large parcel at one particular site for the school.

"The major cost driver was the overpurchase of land," said Cabaldon. "The prior school board had overly ambitious

Women who would rather shop than love

My Back Pages

I was thumbing through the Sacramento Bee awhile back when I spotted an article with a catchy headline that read, "Men prefer yardwork to sex, survey says." So, as someone who has never particularly liked yardwork, I of course decided to read what Scripps Howard News Service writer Lindsay Wise had to say on the subject.

The article began, "Who could have imagined that men might prefer yardwork over sex? But according to a recent study, given free time 'for fun and enjoyment', 52 percent of male 'home enthusiasts' prefer working in the yard, gardening and landscaping to having sex (47 percent)."

As I read on, I discovered that "Many Americans prefer to spend their leisure time being constructive around the home. As the economy gets better, these 'home enthusiasts' are devoting huge chunks of their free time and large sums of money to gardening, building, remodeling, decorating and crafts. They are spending more than just maintenance time on their homes because it relaxes them and gives them a productive way of expressing themselves."

The article concluded with "Among both men and women, gardening was named as a favorite pastime by 45 percent of both men and women, while among both sexes combined, only 40 percent preferred sex for fun and enjoyment."

"Why do you have that goofy expression on your face?" suddenly asked my wife, who was seated next to me on our couch reading the 'Scene' section of the newspaper.

"What expression?" I asked.

"You look confused.

"Really?"

"Well, more confused than normal anyway."

"Well, maybe I am a little confused."

"About what?"

"It's just something I read, that's all."

"What did you read?"

"It wouldn't interest you."

"Try me."

"Okay, there's this article in today's paper that says most men prefer yardwork over having sex."

"Really?"

"Can you believe that? And it also says that 45 percent of women actually prefer working in the garden to having sex."

"Well, now that is pretty interesting, isn't it? Did it happen to say what percent of women prefer shopping for clothes over having sex? I bet it's even higher."

"No, it didn't say anything about that."

"Did it say anything about women being more interesting in going out to dinner than having sex?"

"No."

"Did it mention we would rather go out dancing than have sex?"

"No."

"The movies?"

"No."

"Plays and concerts?"

"No."

"The beach or mountains or just about any place that would get us out of town and away from a kitchen for a few days?"

"No."

"Skiing, ice shaking, bowling....."

"Hey," I interrupted, "just what are you trying to say here? It sounds like you think most women would rather do just about anything than have sex."

"All I'm saying is that if your survey says 45 percent of women would rather sweat like a pig out in the garden than have sex, then I think men are really going to be surprised if they ever do a study about how much women enjoy shopping, dancing, and going out to dinner."

"This conversation is obviously going nowhere," I said as I got up from the couch and went in search of my car keys.

"Where are you going?" asked my wife.

"I'm off to take a little drive around town and do a little survey of my own."

"And what might that be?"

"I'm going to drive around for awhile and check out which of our neighbors have the best kept yards and gardens."

Joke of the week: A quite well-known professional efficiency expert concluded his lengthy lecture with a note of caution: "I would like to advise all of you that you need to be very careful about trying these techniques at home."

"Why is that?" asked a man in the audience.

"Well, I carefully observed my wife's routine at dinner time for many years," explained the efficiency expert, "and noticed that she made many unnecessary trips back and forth between the refrigerator, stove, table and cabinets, often carrying just a single item at a time. So one day I told her, 'Honey, you're preparing dinner all wrong. Why don't you try carrying several things at once and make a better effort to use the time you spend preparing meals more efficiently?' And then I gave her a number of very specific suggestions."

"And did they save time?" the man in the audience asked.

"Actually, yes," replied the expert. "It used to take my wife at least thirty minutes to make dinner. Now I can do it in ten."

Well, "interest only" loans are still in the headlines. Allan Greenspan talked a little about thatm, and had some reservations about this type of financing. In a nutshell, interest-only mortgages have a place, but are certainly not a longterm solution for your real estate goals. Interest-only loans allow buyers to get up to 100% financing for the purchase of a home. They allow you to tap into your equity to pay off debt, purchase things, do home repairs, etc.

Usually they're easy to get and solve a specific need for lower payments. The bigger picture is that sometimes borrowers are blinded by the lower payments and don't read the fine print. One thing is certain: the lender who loaned you the money really does want that money back sometime.

The longer you pay interest-only, and the farther you go before paying it off, the more money for the lender. Read the fine print -- there is a specific draw period, and a payback period. It's usually not longer than 20 years, and sometimes it is 10 years that the want the principal back.

The good things about interest-only loans are that qualifying for a bigger home is easier and the deductible interest on taxes are a good thing. For those who plan to live in a house for a year or two, those loans are very good -- with a fixed rate, there wouldn't be much principal reduction, so why not keep your payments as low as possible?

But if you plan on being in your home for five years or more, plan on refinancing out of your interest-only home as soon as you can so you can enjoy principal reduction.

Call me with any financing questions.

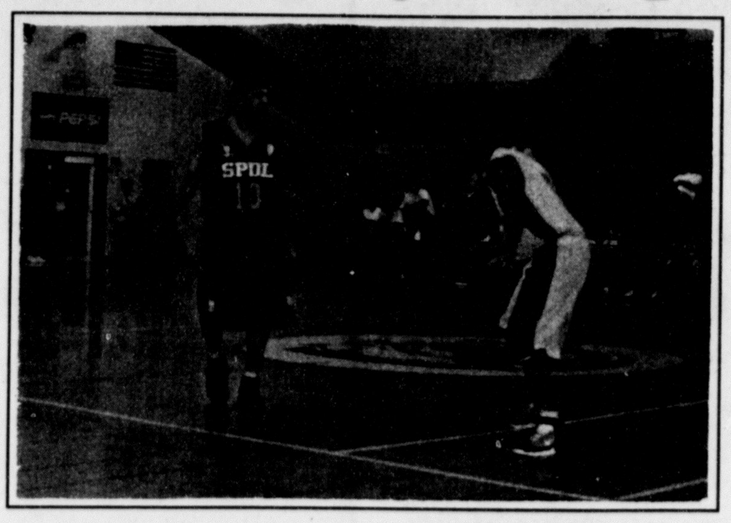
Great basketball players, up close & personal -- and cheap!

By Troy Turner

West Sacramento's Aaron Garner is spending his summer playing with pro basketball players in the Sacramento Professional Development League.

Garner, a 2004 River City High School grad, is preparing for the upcoming season at Yuba College. He was invited to play in the pro development league – the city's most competitive summer basketball league. One of his teammates is Sacramento Kings guard Bobby Jackson, and another is Seattle Supersonics center Jerome James.

Last week, Garner's team played a team that included Kings star Mike Bibby, the Kings' Eddie House and former Kings forward Matt Barnes. Garner had the job of guarding Mike Bibby – not an easy task, but one he did well.



AARON GARNER (right), a 2004 RCHS grad, sets up to guard MIKE BIBBY, star point guard of the Sacramento Kings, in last week's game held at Capitol Christian High School in Sacramento

The team with Jackson, House and Garner won the game 140-132. Jackson finished with 52 points, Bibby had 49, Barnes had 30, and Garner ended with eight points, a rebound and four assists. Not bad for a guy who, a year ago, had just graduated from high school.

The league is the best-kept secret in Sacramento. There is no other place you can see pro basketball in an intimate setting. The players even take time after the game to sign autographs.

All games are played at Capitol Christian High School, 9470 Micron Avenue in Sacramento. Games are played at 7 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

The NBA Championship series is in full swing but in the background the rumors of bad labor issues are starting to rear are ugly head. Commissioner David Stern is pushing the players union to reach a new agreement before the current contract expires on July 1st.

I mentioned in this column six months ago during the National Hockey League strike that the NBA and the Players Association were headed in the same direction. Lockout! The last lockout occurred in the 1998-99 season, which was the first work stoppage in NBA history. The owners lock out the players and take their basketballs and go home until the players decide to be good boys and play for less money and stop taking drugs.

The three major stumbling blocks in the negotiations between the owners and players doesn't really have to do with money. The first issue is the extent of the drug policy mostly involving marijuana use and not steroids. The second problem revolves around the owner's suggestion to cut back the maximum length contracts from seven to six years and finally the league wants to stop high school kids from entering the NBA before their 19th birthday.

I sure the NBA doesn't want to follow in the footsteps of the NHL and ice the 2005/06 season. The strike would affect the fans, sponsors, licensees, television/cable networks and don't forget the poor athletes who will have to draw unemployment insurance. I wonder if any of the unemployed NHL players can play basketball?

Major League Baseball

The Giants (25-36) are playing so bad that three pitchers have either been released or traded this week. The G-men, who were 1-5 at home this week, are starting to panic and are even thinking about releasing 38-year Marquis Grissom and replacing him with a young stud from the farm. Grissom, who is barely hitting his weight (.210), could be released along with outfielder Michael Tucker especially after third baseman Edgardo Alfonso pulled up lame on Sunday and probably headed to the DL to join Mr. Bonds.

The A's (25-37) finally scored some runs for hard luck pitcher Barry Zito (3-7) beating the Braves on Sunday in Georgia. Eric Chavez supplied the run support for Zito with his 9th and 10th home run of the season. The A's took 2 out of 3 games from the first place Braves marking their first series victory on the road since April 4-6.

The A's will return home on Tuesday night for the first of two three game sets against the Mets and Phillies. The Giants will sneak out of town this week to try and win a game in Minnesota or Detroit.

NBA Playoffs

Speaking of Detroit, the Pistons are getting man handled by the boys from the Alamo. The San Antonio Spurs won the first two games of the best of seven series by an average of 15 points. Ouch!

Making Your House Accessible

Marketing your home involves a compromise of your privacy. Real estate agents will be showing your home to buyers. And while you want to make the home accessible to the pros and their prospects, you probably don't want to risk having a broker come in with buyers just as you're sitting down to dinner.

Often, agents use a "lock box." Agents will first call to let the owner know they will be showing the home. If no one is home, the agent can get into the house with a key stored in the lock box.

The other extreme is to require a day's notice before showing, and insist your agent be present each time. This may eliminate some inconvenience to you -- but it also may reduce showings of your house and may increase the time it takes to sell.

land acquisition designs. One consequence is the direct consequence as demanding as much land as the prior school board did. The other was that by declaring that you had to have a land parcel of 80 or 100 acres, you essentially eliminated any competing sites, and that meant you had no negotiating leverage. In a super-heated real estate market, you drive up the price you're paying."

New architectural plans for the school "significantly reduce" the developed area to 62 acres, plus a detention basin, said a WUSD staff report on Thursday.

As for the shortfall?

"The new school board, the city and the rest of the community will figure it out," opined Cabaldon.

shifts to Detroit on Tuesday night for a must win game for the Pistons followed by another must win for sure on Thursday. Piston coach Larry Brown is going to have to dig into his bag tricks to pull out these two must wins or the series is over. If the defending champions can make this a series the fifth game will also be in the Motor City on Sunday, June 19th. The key to victory is simple. Stop Duncan!

Boxing News

The only news in boxing this week was the embarrassing retirement of Iron Mike Tyson at the hands of Irish Kevin McBride. The 38-year old Tyson, who has lost 3 of his last 4 fights, threaten to "gut McBride like a fish" at the weigh-in, only to be beaten into submission in the sixth round. Tyson failed to come out for the seventh round forcing referee Joe Cortez to award McBride a 6th round TKO over the once invincible Iron Man. Another Pay-Per-View extravaganza!

Enjoy your day - see ya next week!

Letters to the Editor

Going to the dogs

When I decided to write this letter I thought about how I would start it, so I'll just come right out and say it; Sam Combs Park is going to the dogs.

At a city meeting a couple of weeks ago, because of the many complaints from the residents of our south area that there is no place to take our dogs for exercise, it was proposed that Sam Combs Park on Stone Boulevard would be the selection for a dog park. Have the nearby residents been advised of this? Have the residents had a chance to comment? Has there been a community neighborhood meeting regarding this? For a fact I know that there has been no notification to the Westmore Oaks neighborhood group, or a meeting.

This situation has also reminded me that for many months we have heard about the construction of new villages in the Southport area and all the new parks going in, probably at least one within each new village being built. I have long since lost count of the number of villages. For a little unofficial count, let me tell you about some of our parks. From West Capitol Avenue south to Stone Boulevard there are approximately five parks and one playfield, the largest being in the states streets, Memorial Park, which is about a block rectangle providing three baseball diamonds (two are fenced and padlocked) plus a small play yard and basketball area. Pennsylvania and Circle parks are roundabouts in the middle of streets. Sam Combs Park is a little over two blocks long and looks like 1/4 block deep. The Discovery Preschool (Measure K) is located on the west end of the park so I suppose the dogs will occupy the east end.

The small Meadowdale Park is at the west end of West Capitol Avenue near the I-80 freeway. It is a very narrow strip of grass up against the highway sound barrier. The Westacre Playfield is located on Evergreen across from Washington Unified School District offices.

To include the balance of our city north of West Capitol Avenue there are approximately three parks, Bryte, Elkhorn and River Walk Park. There are two playfields, the Alyce Norman/Bryte, and Westfield playfields. These playfields are attached to or along side of a school, not parks for having family picnics, etc., nor a place to take your toddlers. This gives us a grand total of eight parks with nine more on the drawing boards, not to mention three trail/recreation corridors. And no room for your dogs?

Not surprised

We were not one bit surprised that there is a cost overrun facing the new high school budget, and no one else should be, either. The school board lied and misled the people from the start. They knew it couldn't be built for the bond issue amount, but said lets ask for this much money ($52 million) now and then we will ask for more at a later date, citing cost overruns. Does anyone believe this is it for cost? Hang on to your hat because they will come back to the trough again.

Lets forget the costly extra amenities and concentrate on one thing, education!

One idea comes to mind. We could sell the high priced proposed new high school property on Jefferson Boulevard/Linden Road and buy less expensive property maybe at the port. Less traffic and maybe less costly.

Stick to the plan!

We want the mayor and the city council members to uphold the zoning that has been laid out and approved in the West Sacramento General plan. We are opposed to any changes that would increase housing density above the numbers previously approved in that general plan, and especially, before that general plan has even been built out. Because only then will we know the full impact of housing, cars and people already approved to move in.

Then, and only then, is it acceptable for developers to try to change our general plan and zoning. They say each little piece they want to change is only a small piece, but we know there are many more pieces that are not small at all that they are planning behind the scenes.

And many of us who attended and spoke to the planning commission at their May meeting are highly disgusted by the self-serving lecture Mr. White issued to the audience when we could not respond. We want him removed from his position and appointment by Mayor Cabaldon, because he is obviously not mature enough to handle himself appropriately in addressing the public. We don't know if he thinks he was appointed king, but the truth is he is simply a public servant, like the rest of the city council and the elected mayor.

We want our public servants to serve us as they say they will; to protect us from developers who do not care what nightmares they leave us with once they collect their money; to say 'no' to changing zoning in the general plan that has been approved; to stand up for the idea that we do not want to become like Natomas and Elk Grove and every other swarming, beesnest, bedroom of "villages;" to stop this "unsmart urban sprawl growth," right here in West Sacramento; and to save the rural residential, rural estate and agricultural lands that are in the general plan, the true open spaces!

Worried about Supreme Court

Do you wonder what all this fuss is about in the Senate about advising and consenting to life-time judgeships? If there were any doubt that our recent Republican-appointed federal judges are "out of the mainstream" and are undermining our American freedoms (which says we are at war to protect), fresh evidence is unfortunately in. Bush #1's Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas just wrote, in a concurring opinion on May 31, involving the Religious Land Use and Institutional Protection Act, some extremely oddball words in passing. Justice Thomas wrote that our First Amendment freedom of religion, in the Bill of Rights, means that the federal government cannot establish a religion; but, because of states' rights, the federal government "must not interfere with a state establishment of religion."

So, if Texas wants to establish a tax-supported church (that, for example, believes in white male leadership of oil corporations and makes Jesus Day on June 10 a state holiday) or Maryland wants to establish a different tax-supported church (that, for example, must adhere to the Pope's rulings on stem cell research), our U.S. Constitution cannot interfere with these state-sponsored religious shennanigans, according to Justice Thomas.

This idea of his would deem the sacrifices of the Civil War in vain, and allow states to deprive U.S. citizens of basic American freedoms. This comes from one of the same neo-conservative group who, by a vote of 5-4, anointed Bush president in 2000 and who refuse to let citizens have the right to know who met with Vice President Cheney to formulate our excellent gasoline and electricity policy, which has been so helpful to normal families in California and across America.

Justice Thomas votes with Justice Scalia about 97% of the time. Are the cases that come up to the Supreme Court all that easy to decide, or is something else going on? As my God-fearing mother used to say: when a dinner guest talks a lot about their closeness to God, count the silverware.

The rich are being showers with blessings while the poor are fighting their wars.

For immigration initiative

Assemblyman Ray Haynes is about to start gathering signatures for an initiative to be placed on the ballot to form a California State Boarder Patrol Agency. It will actively operate throughout the state, not just within 25 miles of the boarder as the feds currently do. The agency will also target employers of illegal aliens which will help dry up the main alleged reason that draws them here -- finally. It's reliably estimated to save taxpayers up to nine dollars of real costs for every dollar spent on it. It's past time something effective was done to deal with this deplorable situation of exploitation of very desperate, very cheap and expendable day laborers, while summarily interdicting gang-bangers, pot farm guards and potential terrorists as well.

This ballot measure, however, ought to incorporate enabling legislation with a penalty clause codifying failure to comply, or to actively or passively order noncompliance with this act as an automatic class 1, 2, or 3 felony with a mandatory sentence of up to ten years with no exceptions and no probation for office holders or political appointees who abuse their position of public trust to flaunt their will in opposition to that of the people they serve. Otherwise certain mayors, city councils, county supervisors, school districts, UC chancellors, governors, police chiefs, state attorney generals, et cetera, as well as many in the federal bureaucracy, will continue to implicitly condone, and/or outright order with apparent impunity, noncompliance with federal immigration laws, as some do presently and others have in the past.

DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

CELEBRITY extra

by Evelyn Green

Q. I often watch the shopping channels, and I wonder how many of the celebrities actually work with the products they sell. For example, do they design the clothes or decide how a perfume should smell? — Karleen J.

A. Although I wouldn't swear that Elizabeth Taylor heats a test tube over a Bunsen burner flame when her perfumes are being concocted, or that Susan Lucci actually sits down at a sewing machine to come up with a design prototype, the fact is the celebrities are very much involved in the products.

For one thing, while they may not design an outfit from the inside out (seaming, etc.) as professional designers do, they may sketch an outfit and work with the designers and give their approval for the final creation. They do the same with scents: Chemists create the fragrances (floral, musky, fruity, etc.) with the advice and consent of the celebrities. Ditto cosmetics, shoes, etc.

Q. On "The View," I believe I heard Barbara Walters say once that she spent her teen years working in a New York City nightclub. My neighbor, (with whom) I carpool, says that's not true. I can almost swear it is. — Maureen F.

A. Barbara Walters' father was legendary showman Lou Walters, who for years ran the fabulous New York night spot "The Latin Quarter." Barbara says that after school, she would sometimes come down to the club to watch rehearsals for the spectacular shows, especially when a famous entertainer headlined. However, she never worked there.

Q. Is it true that "Monster-in-Law" is the only "comeback" movie Jane Fonda decided to make? I recently heard that she wanted to do it so that it would help her sell her autobiography, and then she would retire from movies for good. — Genna L.

Barbara Walters

A. Au contraire. Jane Fonda is said to be planning to reunite with former "Nine to Five" co-stars Lily Tomlin and Dolly Parton in a sequel to the hit movie

Q. I was shocked to hear on my car radio that one of our presidents had been a male model. Unfortunately, I didn't hear who it was because I had to turn the radio off. No one I know knows the answer. — Debra V.

A. The answer is President Gerald Ford. During his college years at Michigan, Ford played football, and he was a favorite of sports photographers both for his gridiron skills and his good looks. He was on the cover of national magazines and also modeled sportswear for a while. One of his sons, Steven Ford, who starred on "The Young and The Restless," told a colleague that his dad had turned down film contracts because he wanted a career in public service.

CRITIC'S CORNER

By D.NA Smith

"The Longest Yard"

Running time: 109 minutes
MPAA rating: PG-13

Didn't Adam Sandler already make a football movie? Yes. It was "The Waterboy," and it was a much better football movie than "The Longest Yard," Sandler's latest attempt at trying to shed his emotionally retarded man-child persona.

The problem is, Adam Sandler is no Burt Reynolds (who starred in the original version back in the '70s), and putting Burt in your movie only reminds us of Sandler's (and the remake's) shortcomings.

Sandler plays Paul Crewe, a former NFL quarterback who was once accused of shaving points in a game. Crewe is arrested and sent to prison for reckless, drunk driving after spending nine years on a drunken bender.

The warden (James Cromwell) is a football nut, and all the guards are former college players who didn't make the NFL cut. They play in some kind of prison league, and the warden forces Crewe to set up a preseason warm-up game between the prisoners and the guards. The game is going to be televised on ESPN, because the warden, who has aspirations of being governor of Texas, wants the TV exposure.

Of course, the prisoners aren't supposed to win, so the warden frames Crewe for a murder he didn't commit in order to get Crewe to throw the game.

The plot is pretty much the same as the original, but the execution is way different. In the original, the guards and the warden were far more sadistic and cruel, which justified the violence on the field. In Sandler's version, the guards come off as little more than schoolyard bullies — and not very bright ones, since the security is so lax that one of the prisoners always seems to have a freshly made McDonald's cheeseburger on hand. Another prisoner's justification for wanting to get back at the guards is because one big, bad guard wouldn't let him finish watching "The View."

Burt Reynolds, Adam Sandler

Now you see the problem with "The Longest Yard." It's a comedy that wants so badly to be dramatic. The original was a gritty drama with moments of low comedy. The reason the original was a great movie was because of the confident swagger and screen presence of Burt Reynolds.

The reason Sandler's version fails is because Sandler doesn't have the machismo to pull it off. In locker-room terms, Sandler can't fill Reynolds' jock. Period.

THE CHOPPING BLOCK

by Philomena Corradeno

CANNED PEARS ARE READY WHEN YOU ARE

While you will find many varieties of fresh pears all year, you can be sure you're getting the cream of the crop when you buy them in cans. There's no waiting for the fruit to ripen. They're ready when you are.

Let's say you've just read a tempting recipe calling for pears. You go to the fruit bowl, but the pears you bought yesterday just aren't ripe enough. Sure, in a couple of days they will be luscious and juicy, but you want to try that recipe now. If you don't have canned pears on hand, put them on your shopping list so you can try the recipes that follow.

The spicy Pear Gingerbread is not only a great dessert and a delicious afternoon snack with a glass of milk, but, omitting the whipped cream, it's good for breakfast.

The Berry Pear Crisp is so easy because the flavoring has been done for you in the canned blueberry pie filling and in the flavored instant oatmeal. Preparation takes only 10 minutes, and the oven does the rest.

PEAR GINGERBREAD

- 2 tablespoons butter, softened
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup molasses
- 1 3/4 cups all-purpose baking mix
- 3 teaspoons ground ginger
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/2 cup hot water
- 2 large eggs, beaten
- 1 (15-ounce) can Pacific Northwest Pears, Chunky Ready-Cut, well-drained
- Fresh whipped cream or whipped topping (optional)

1. Preheat oven to 350 F.

2. In large bowl, cream together butter and sugar. Stir in molasses until well blended; set aside. In another bowl, mix together baking mix, ginger, cinnamon and cloves. Alternately add dry ingredients and hot water to molasses mixture; beat until mixture is smooth. Whisk in eggs.

3. Spread batter into a greased 13-by-9-by-2-inch baking pan. Evenly sprinkle cut pears over batter. Bake 30 to 35 minutes or until toothpick inserted into center comes out clean. Cool completely before serving. If desired, serve each portion with a dollop of whipped cream. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Serving Suggestion: Sprinkle a little cinnamon over dollop of whipped cream and garnish with a sprig of fresh mint.

BERRY PEAR CRISPS WITH A TWIST

- 1 (1 pound 5-ounce) can blueberry pie filling
- 1 1/2 teaspoons fresh grated lemon peel
- 2 (15-ounce) cans Pacific Northwest canned pear halves, well-drained
- 3 (1.5-ounce) packaged instant oatmeal, maple and brown sugar flavor
- 1/4 cup chilled sweet butter

Preheat oven to 400 F.

Combine blueberry pie filling with grated lemon peel. Spread filling mixture into a greased 11-by-7-by-2-inch baking pan. Arrange pear halves over filling, round sides up; set aside. In a food processor, pulse together oatmeal and butter until combined and crumbly, about 8 seconds. Sprinkle oatmeal mixture around the pears and the edge of the pan. Bake, uncovered, for 35 to 40 minutes or until oatmeal is golden brown. Cool 20 minutes before serving warm. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Serving suggestion: Finish this wonderful dessert with a simple garnish. Dollop each serving with fresh whipped cream and then top it with a curl of lemon zest.

Enjoy Coffee While You Can

"This stuff makes you old," the waitress told us as she handed us our coffee.

You can imagine our excitement. Finally, after years of fruitless search, we had discovered the Fountain of Dotage — percolating, so to speak, under our nose.

"Thank you," I wanted to exclaim. "We find that we haven't been entirely satisfied with the sluggish rate of our aging process. Our memories remain too keen, our limbs too limber. It's reassuring to know that the coffee from this fine establishment will help hasten us along our way."

But I didn't, of course. Life is too short.

Also, I had the perfect rejoinder. "No, it doesn't," I replied, with the smooth confidence of an actor dressed up like a doctor. "Coffee has antioxidants."

Well, it turned out our smarty-pants waitress/medical professional didn't even know what antioxidants are. Hah!

Come to think of it, I didn't know either.

But at least I knew they were supposed to be good for you. I just couldn't remember why — probably a memory lapse caused by too-few antioxidants.

Still, it was easy to imagine our waitress spreading sunshine throughout the day:

DINER: I'll have the turkey with mash potatoes and gravy.

WAITRESS: You sure 'bout that gravy? It's gonna clog your arteries.

DINER: But ...

WAITRESS: No "buts" about it. You're likely to keel over before the end of my shift, so I hope you don't mind paying when I bring the food.

And:

DINER: What do you have for dessert?

WAITRESS: Trust me, you don't need dessert.

However, in the interest of science and expanding knowledge for my dear readers, I looked up antioxidants and found that they are, um, I'm still not sure.

But the important thing is: You need to load up on antioxidants now before they become bad for you.

That's right. Go to your local diner and order the Antioxidant Special, with a heaping side of Whole Grain Glop.

Enjoy while you can the feeling that you are doing something good for your body.

Because that feeling will not last.

Consider sunscreen. A few years back, columnist Mary Schmich famously offered this sage advice to graduating seniors: Wear Sunscreen.

In fact, wearing sunscreen was such blue-chip, couldn't-go-wrong advice back in 1997 that Schmich wrote, "If I could offer only one tip for the future, sunscreen would be it. The long-term benefits of sunscreen have been proven by scientists, whereas the rest of my advice has no more basis than my own meandering experience."

That was then. Now, of course, the headlines shout: SUNSCREEN INCREASES CANCER RISK.

Who saw that one coming?

Mindful of Schmich's success, I offer the following advice to today's graduates:

- Be a borrower and a lender.
- Don't floss.
- Don't eat your vegetables.
- To thine own self, be false.
- And be false to everyone one else too.
- Just say yes to drugs.
- Don't wear clean underwear.
- Drink coffee.
- Or don't drink coffee. Either way, you're going to get old.

Did Someone Mention Strawberries?

I don't know which is best — strawberries or peaches — so I used them both in this ultra-easy (and delightful) dessert.

PEACH-STRAWBERRY PUDDING

- 1 (4-serving) package sugar-free strawberry gelatin
- 1 1/2 cups boiling water
- 3/4 cup plain fat-free yogurt
- 1 cup peeled and chopped fresh peaches
- 1 cup chopped fresh strawberries

In a medium bowl, combine dry gelatin and boiling water. Add yogurt. Mix well using a wire whisk. Fold in peaches and strawberries. Evenly pour mixture into 4 dessert dishes. Refrigerate until set, about 2 hours. Makes 4 servings.

GREAT STOCK YARDS AND PACKING HOUSE ARE ASSURED FOR YOLO SIDE OF THE RIVER

necessary adjuncts to a stockyard. Great quantities of alfalfa will be needed. The beans that are now grown in this locality and shipped to Boston for canning are returned here at a great expense which in the future will be avoided for the packing house will not only preserve canned meats but will also engage in other lines of similar character.

The corporation handling this concern will be known as the Virden Packing Company and Stockyards. It is capitalized, or will be in a few days, in the sum of $5,000,000, and last Wednesday the first effort was made to interest the moneyed interests of Sacramento in its promotion and investment.

C. E. Virden will be President of the corporation, while it is believed that J. H. Glide will be Vice-President.

In promoting the sale of stock J. R. Whisner, now of the California State Life Insurance Company, and H. R. Saltmarsh will be deeply concerned.

It is their intention to interest all the stock growers of the State, so that the concern may be mutually beneficial to the growers and packers.

Capital from five states, namely, Oregon, Nevada, Arizona, Utah and California will be interested.

The location selected for the stockyards is eminently suitable in many ways. It is in close connection with rail and water transportation, having at its door two electric roads, the Sacramento Northern and the Oakland Antioch, and two transcontinental roads, the Southern Pacific and the Western Pacific.

In addition, there is river transportation to and from direct shipping at San Francisco for points in South America and Europe.

A river front of 2,000 feet will accommodate all river boats and barges.

The proposers of this packing concern and stockyards believe there is a splendid future for the concern. They point to the fact that 80 per cent of California livestock (raw material) is now sent East and returned subsequently for consumption. Bacon is being sold in Chicago, which was grown in California, for 33½ cents per pound, while the retailer in California is forced to pay 49 cents and the consumer in proportion.

The figures quoted above by The Independent are not exaggerations in any sense of the word. The Armour plant in Kansas City employs 6,000 men, while in the entire stockyards and packing houses of that city 40,000 men are busy.

The Chicago stockyard is proportionately greater.

In the center of the Sacramento Valley and surrounded by a great territory producing vast herds of stock, hundreds of thousands of head of sheep and hogs, there should be ample opportunity for this concern.

J. R. Wilson, Traffic Manager of the Sacramento Northern, while on business in Salt Lake last week, took advantage of the opportunity to look over two packing plants situated in Salt Lake and Ogden.

Both of these nave been dividend-paying propositions and they are continually adding to their plants.

Mr. Wilson says that these packing plants are a great benefit to their surrounding territory. In the first place, the price of meat is cheaper to the consumer and an over supply is impossible because of the refrigeration facilities.

Again, farmers in the immediate neighborhood must naturally benefit, for the products of their farms will be in constant demand.

Again, the great packers of the Eastern States must maintain buyers and offices near the stockyards. This, in itself, will be an advantage.

The Independent considers that this one more great industry added to the assets of Yolo County, and especially this section of the county, will materially benefit Sacramento and adjacent territory.

The Independent rejoices with the property owners of Yolo County in this one more evidence of concentrated wealth that will revert to the benefit of all the people and property owners.

RIVERBANK LIBERTY LEAGUE TO MERGE INTO COMMUNITY LEAGUE

Thursday evening the Riverbank Liberty League decided, at a called meeting, to transfer all its properties and belonging to a Community League that will be formed on Saturday evening, March 1st.

The object of the community league will be to care for all the boys returning from the front in the way of securing them employed and helping them otherwise.

At the meeting on March 1st a social dance will be held and all ladies of the district are invided. Ladies were not members of the Liberty League.

A committee of arrangements has been appointed to look after the affair to be held on March 1st.

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN WILL HOLD ST. PATRICK DANCE

At a called meeting of the Washington Volunteer Firemen held in the Town Hall last evening matters pertaining to the department were considered.

It was a decided also that a St. Patrick's dance would be held on the evening of March 15th in the Town Hall, the proceeds of which would be devoted to maintaining the department and purchasing new and additional apparatus.

A committee of arrangements was named to start the ball rolling.

This consists of E. Phillips, E. Moss, R. Shaw, W. Leinberger and J. N. Bennetts.

This committee will meet next Tuesday evening in the public library to make preliminary arrangements.

FORTY TIMES A BANK PRESIDENT NO SMALL HONOR

Wm. Beckman was elected president of the Peoples Bank in Sacramento last Saturday for the fortieth time.

He is now 87 years of age and has successfully conducted the institution to financial success during his incumbency. This is no small honor for a man who came to California when the West was wild and woolly.

With all his success, Beckman is as modest as a ten-year-old boy, bearing his honors with discretion and good judgment.

THREE DEATHS LEAVE AS MANY HOMES DESOLATE

FRANK EUGENE

Last Monday Frank Eugene died in a hospital in Sacramento after a short sickness lasting only a few days.

Last Thursday he attended to his usual duties but took to his bed that night. He sank quickly, a victim of the white plague.

During the past two years he had been in poor health but had sufficient grit to continue his work of stage carpenter in a Sacramento theatre.

Eugene was a likeable man of many good qualities, always friendly and always square.

To mourn him are his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Eugene, and the following brothers and sisters: Harry Eugene, Mrs. A. Reid, Mrs. H. Hoover, Mrs. Ray Speicher, Percy Eugene and Joe Eugene. The deceased was about 38 years old, and had resided in Washington for a number of years. Eugene's mother is at present at Camp Mills, New York, attending her son, Percy, who has been seriously ill for several months.

His funeral was held yesterday in Sacramento, interment being in the City Cemetery.

THOMAS VERNON DUPZYK

Just past his seventh birthday Thomas V. Dupzyk died last Wednesday evening at the home of his parents on Third street of some disease inexplicable of name.

The boy had been sick for two weeks and medical care under four physicians failed to relieve him. It is thought that his sickness was meningitis.

He was born in Kansas but had lived the greater portion of his young life in Washington.

His funeral was held this afternoon in Sacramento, interment being in the Odd Fellows' Cemetery.

CHARLES GUYSI.

During several years Charles Guysi was a rancher in the South Putah district near Davis.

Of late he resided with his half brother, Fred Morgan, in Washington. He was a native of Yolo County.

Some time ago he contracted the white plague and gradually sank till last Tuesday when he passed away.

He was 39 years of age.

His funeral was held to-day, interment being at Tremont Cemetery near Dixon.

Services were held in the Presbyterian Church in Dixon.

As a hearing person who works as an interpreter of American Sign Language, Alice Marlowe has made a career out of helping people communicate with one another. But she also can't help but feel cut off from them, privy to conversations and lives that aren't really hers. Single, far from her family and reeling from the recent death of her twin brother, Alice resigns herself to the idea that her life may always be lonely.

Until one night, at nearly three in the morning, her phone rings. On the other end is a scared 6-year-old girl, alone in her apartment and worried that her mother hasn't yet come home. Larissa is a complete stranger to Alice, but she knows that she can't ignore her plight. She goes to the girl, and before she knows what is happening Alice is sucked along with her into the bureaucratic labyrinth of the foster-care system.

Alice's special skills may be exactly what Larissa needs, for the traumatized child, cut off from her mother and bumped through foster homes, now refuses to speak. But Larissa's silence is a challenge unlike any Alice has faced before. And as she struggles to help Larissa break from her shell, Alice slowly, timidly begins to break out of her own.

Unlike many stories of this nature, Alice's tale is poignant without being sappily sentimental. She's a clear-eyed, intelligent woman who is not afraid to face unpleasantness and the prejudices and preconceptions that even people who try to be open and understanding can unknowingly harbor. Lyrical and bittersweet, "The Story of Us" is a delicate, nuanced and yet ultimately realistic portrait of two vulnerable people with something important to offer one another.

CASE NUMBER PB05-086

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, Evelyn Capps Smith AKA Evelyn Smith:

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Jerry L. Smith in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Jerry L. Smith be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on July 12, 2005, at 8:30 a.m., in Dept. 11, Superior Court of California, County of Yolo, 812 Court St., Woodland, CA 95695.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.
